TWO LIVES ARE LOST, PROPERTY DAMAGE HEAVY IN STORM

Stevens and Carpenter Again Are Denied Bail

FINGERPRINTS ON CARD MAY PROVE FORTUNATE CLUE

One Of Suspects Said To Be Implicated By Evidence

DEFENSE HIT BY SIMPSON

Prosecutor Bitter In Denunciation Of Defendants

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 26. (AP)—Superior Court Justice Parker today refused to admit to bail Henry De La Bruyere Carpenter and Willie Stevens, held for the murder of Rev. Edward Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills. The two were held by County Judge Cleary, after a five-day hearing.

"Dr. Hall was killed trying to save a woman," Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, said in his argument.

"I can demonstrate that this man Stevens was at the scene of the murders, that he was near the bodies and that he placed the cards on Dr. Hall's foot," declared Simpson.

Attacking the attitude of defense counsel and the defendants, Simpson said:

"You weren't sitting here for four days (referring to the preliminary hearing) as I was, with defense counsel grinning and sneering all through the proceedings."

Looking at Carpenter, who appeared very unconcerned with the proceedings, Simpson shouted:

"He is smiling, and has been smiling all through the hearing, as though the charge of murder were a joke."

"To release these men would be a travesty on justice," the prosecutor declared in closing.

A card which was on the body of the Rev. Edward W. Hall, when it was found with that of his choir singer Mrs. Eleanor Mills, Sept. 16, 1922, is in the possession of the state and fingerprints on it correspond to those of one of the three people held for the murder, according to Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson. He announced the finding of the card which had been reported missing at a hearing before Justice Parker this morning for the admission to bail of Henry Carpenter and Willie Stevens, held for the murder.

Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain rector, cousin of Carpenter and sister of Stevens and the third person charged with the murder is already out on bail.

At a preliminary hearing last week county judge Carey held Carpenter and Stevens without bail.

Last Holiday Is Being Observed

Merchants of Albany-Decatur this afternoon were enjoying the last half-holiday of the summer months, having concluded the practice since the start in June. The agreement entered into by local people carried the provision that merchants would close on Thursday afternoons through the months of June, July and August.

Limestone Hurt By Pest Attack

Although very little in actual figures or percentage is available, it is the prevalent belief that Limestone county farmers, particularly in the southern sections, have been hard hit with the attack of worm pests. It is stated that Limestone has bought calcium arsenate in greater quantities than in Morgan and it is believed that the worm has caused great damage.

FACULTY ARRIVES AT AN EARLY DATE

Twelve Hundred Be Enrolled In Decatur School System

Faculty members of Decatur school system are expected to begin arriving next week to take up the work of teaching the twelve hundred or more students to be enrolled in that system this year, according to W. W. Benson, superintendent. Schools will open on September 7.

Suitable opening day program is being planned, according to school officials, the public being cordially invited to attend the exercises at the high school auditorium.

Members of the board and school heads are looking forward to a successful year, scholastically and athletically.

He hopes, modestly, "to turn America away from materialism." If he can do that, without overdoing it, and then take American life and energy home to Britain's 300,000,000 subjects in India, he will prove himself an industrial Messiah, to the Hindus.

MURPHREE NAMED HEALTH DIRECTOR FOR THIS DISTRICT

Expected to Make His Headquarters In Twin Cities

TRIBUTE PAID NEW OFFICIAL

Appointment Will Be Effective On September 1

Dr. C. L. Murphee, formerly health officer of Etowah county, has been named assistant health officer, to have charge of the North Alabama district and likely will make his headquarters here. Information to this effect was received here today from Gadsden. The appointment is effective September 1.

Dr. Murphee will be succeeded as health officer of Etowah county by Dr. Edwin Harper, formerly health officer of Marshall county, the same report stated.

The position to be filled by Dr. Murphee is presumed to be the office resigned sometime ago by Dr. B. F. Austin, who returned to the private practice of medicine in Huntsville.

In a tribute to Dr. Murphee, the Gadsden Evening Star says:

Dr. Murphee is the oldest health officer in Alabama in point of service. He has been at the head of the Etowah county unit since it was created, and has done a fine work, according to officials of the state health department. In fact, his methods and his accomplishments have attracted nationwide attention; and it is claimed that he has performed a fine service for his state in preventive work. Figures are said to show that he has reduced ravages from communicable diseases; that there are fewer cases of typhoid, diphtheria, smallpox and the like in this county as the result of methods used by the unit. School children have been examined and many of their ailments have been corrected. The death rate has slowly but surely been reduced.

State Health Officer S. W. Welch, who was in Gadsden yesterday, stated that Dr. Murphee's promotion is due to the fact that he knows the work and is competent to carry it out.

Welcome Krishnamurti. We Over Do It Often. Men Read More Than Women. Another "Limit" Vanishes.

idealism, but that is not as harmful as the sombre surrender of high thought to India's heat. We are largely, what climate makes us. Eskimos will never think too cold. Hindus have lost their Aryan inheritance—too hot. They plan a life of contemplation, and for heaven invent "Nirvana," which is nothingness, no work, no planning, no thinking, no progress. India's heat makes the thought of work painful. Even the Jewish people, terrifically energetic, in the right climate and surroundings, planned a heaven with nothing to do but sing, and bow down before a king.

AS A PEOPLE, we are inclined to overdo everything. Even our churches might paste up somewhere the inscription carved on the temple of Apollo Delphi: "Medeagan." "nothing in excess." In Kentucky there was a dangerous drought. Clergymen and the people, everywhere, prayed for rain, everywhere.

OSTENSIBLY TWICE BURIED, YOUTH CALLS ON PARENTS

Exact Double Of William Ellison Buried In Lawrenceburg Two Years Ago.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 26. (AP)—Ostensibly twice buried, with two sets of funeral services held over his supposed body, William Ellison, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ellison, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., was back at his home today, well and happy, recounting stories of two years of travel.

Meanwhile, in the Greendale cemetery, at Lawrenceburg, has lain the exact double of Ellison, identified in every respect as the son of the Lawrenceburg grocer. Father, mother, uncle and relatives and friends identified the body that lay in an undertaker's morgue in Covington, Ky., as young Ellison's.

The body was found two years ago floating in the Licking river, near Decoursey, Ky. Taken to the morgue in Covington, it lay there four days without identification. Then the undertaker buried the body. Several days later, Alois Ellison, uncle of young Ellison, visited the undertaker and from the description given him decided the body must be that of the missing youth.

He communicated with the boy's parents. Ellison, the father, came to Covington with relatives and several friends. The body was exhumed and identified. On the father's orders the body was transported to Lawrenceburg, where the body was buried.

William told his parents of his travels. He laughed, embarrassed, when asked why he had never written.

CROSS BURNED AS ORCHESTRA PLAYS

Hooded Figure's Robe Catches Fire But He Smothers It

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 26. (AP)—To the eloquent strains of "Always" and "Sitting on Top of the World" flames waltzed and tripped sensuously up and down a pair of crossed sticks last night in front of the home of Mrs. Maude Murphy, 1123 North 21st street.

A local orchestra was practicing in the house when the plaintiff squeek of brakes was heard without and a large closed car halted at the gate. Three figures, robed and with flowing night caps dropped to their chins, leaped from the machine, lunging a queerly shaped contraption.

Sitting in the yard they staked a match and a fiery cross blazed merrily, one skirt, swishing too near the flames, caught fire, but the hooded wearer beat it out bravely as he fled to the waiting automobile.

The windows of Mrs. Murphy's home were crowded for a moment with inquisitive members of the orchestra, but practice was resumed shortly after.

"Business before play," the leader told them.

The orchestra is a well known and popular aggregation.

In another section of the city a sobbing boy was telling a sympathetic companion how he had seen his father steal away with the kite sticks he had made during the afternoon.

Cross burning in Birmingham, which was said to be a popular pastime for unknown persons last winter, appears to have been revived again. Two days ago police had reports of such an occurrence in another highly respected neighborhood.

THREE DROWNED

LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 26. (AP)—Russell A. McKinley, blind lawyer, who figured in the Aimee Semple McPherson investigation, a man believed to be John Law, and a third unidentified man, were drowned here today when their automobile plunged into a ditch. Search was made for the body of a fourth man believed to have been a passenger in the car. The machine, instead of being turned onto a detour was driven straight into the ditch filled with water.

PLANS MATURING, SECRETARY SAYS, FOR VALLEY FAIR

Agricultural Exhibits From 3 Counties To Be Shown

FREE ACTS TO BE FEATURE

Sheesley Shows Will Provide Midway For the Event

Hugh Ballew, secretary and general manager of the North Alabama fair, which will open here September 20 and continue through September 25, announced that plans for the big event are maturing rapidly.

Contracts have been closed for most of the big amusement program and agricultural exhibits on a big scale, are being arranged for display from Morgan, Limestone and Lawrence counties. A horse show, chicken show and baby show will be other features.

The original exhibits and the various "shows" will be housed in tents and temporary buildings in Malone park. Work of preparing the park for the fair will begin soon.

The Sheesley Shows will provide many of the tented attractions and will bring two brass bands here. Negotiations now are underway by the fair management for a third band, amply taking care of the musical program.

Independent contracts have been made by the fair managers for a list of free attractions which will be a feature. The headline will be Lionel Legare, "special tower walker," described by Al Ringling of circus fame, as "the greatest single free attraction ever seen at any fair or outdoor entertainment." The Parents, marvelous acrobats; Sy and Mandy, humorists, and the Rosards, aerial and trapeze acrobats, are included in the big free program.

Secretary Ballew is endeavoring to get the cooperation of local merchants in a "trade week" plan, inasmuch as thousands of visitors are expected here during the six days of the fair.

Lauderdale Folk Await Weather

Farmers in Lauderdale county are idle at the present time, according to J. B. Cassels, manager of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company who has just returned from a trip into that section. Mr. Cassels declared that the crops have had far too much rain in that section, occasioning the idleness. Mr. Cassels made the trip in connection with the plans of his company for rendering more efficient service in rural extensions.

AARON WEECE TO FACE TRIAL FOR KILLING EARL FERGUSON

Aaron Weece, Ardmore man, will face charges in Limestone Superior Court on Monday in connection with the death of Earl Ferguson who died last week at Baugh's Infirmary where he had been brought with a fractured skull.

Weece is understood to have asked for the trial in order that he might be cleared of charges.

According to the Athens correspondent of the Daily, D. L. Rosenau, Jr., Weece surrendered himself voluntarily. Weece is declared to have told the story that he was pitching horseshoes near Ardmore with several friends. He

STOP SIGNAL LAW NOW IS EFFECTIVE

Violators Are To Be Arrested, Says Announcement

Announcement was made in Albany today that the new traffic code will become effective immediately and orders have been issued for the arrest of all violators.

It will be recalled that a new code was adopted by the council recently, including the installation of a number of "stop" signals at various street intersections. The public was given several days to become familiar with the places these signs are located. It was believed that the locations of these signs now are familiar with drivers of vehicles and arrests will follow failure to comply with the stop signals.

Absentee Votes To Be Delayed

Absentee ballots for voters in the municipal elections in Albany and Decatur will not be available until after 20 days before the election. The law provides that candidates have until within 20 days of election to file their announcements. Obviously, city officials will not be in position to prepare the ballot until the expiration of that time limit. It will be necessary then to have the ballots printed.

M. R. Rankin is The First To Announce

The announcement today of the candidacy of M. R. Rankin, for president of the Albany city council, subject to the action of voters in the municipal election to be held on September 20, is the first official announcement made in the campaigns of both cities. Friends presented the petition of Mr. Rankin to the mayor of Albany with 53 signatures, only 25 being required.

Ferguson's condition was never improved since being brought here. Immediately after the accident he was rushed to these cities and given every medical attention, but never regained his speech.

No complaint has been made against Weece, it is stated, the defendant now being out on bond.

HOUSES UPROOFED; CROPS HARD HIT BY GULF'S HURRICANE

Property Loss Likely To Reach a Million, Paper Estimates

TIDES FLOW OVER TOWNS

Communication Still Cut Off With Many Of the Sections

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 26. (AP)—The river packet steamer Terrebonne sank in the Mississippi river, six miles from Donaldsonville during the storm which swept up the river last night, it was learned here today. The Terrebonne was loaded with a cargo of rice. The crew comprised of about 40 men, reached shore in safety.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 26. (AP)—Property damage in excess of $1,000,000, two deaths and inestimable amount of damage, was the toll of the storm which roared across the eastern Louisiana coast last night, reports said today. Damage to the rice, corn, sugar cane and cotton crops of LaFourche, Terrebonne, Jefferson, Plaquemine, Assumption and St. Mary parishes will reach $1,000,000, the New Orleans States estimated and business houses and residences at Morgan City were damaged more than $150,000.

Houses were unroofed at Lockport, many homes were blown down at Houma, severe damage done to the Raceland sugar house and the steamer Houma, of the Bradford Transportation company was badly damaged. High tides caused water to overflow at Morgan City, Lockport, Houma and Raceland, the greatest fury of the storm being loosed in lower Terrebonne and LaFourche, ship captains said.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 26. (AP)—Two persons dead, several others injured more than a score of small houses and others wind damaged marked the passage of the tropical storm last night. A complete check of the storm damage was not possible early today. Morgan City, Schriever, Des Allemands, Lockport, Houma, Thibodaux and other towns in LaFourche, Terrebonne, Jefferson and Vermillion parishes, which bore the brunt of the storm was shut off from communication with the outside world today, Baton Rouge also could not be reached either by telephone or telegraph.

Although no major storm damage had been reported hundreds of electric light telegraph and telephone poles were blown down, trees were uprooted and at points along the coast the high tides did minor damage to sea walls, roadways and bath houses.

The crew of an Illinois Central train arriving 13 hours behind schedule, reported that for miles they had been forced to stop intermittently to clear the tracks of debris.

The wind at New Orleans reached a velocity of 44 miles an hour. Concern was expressed for safety of Chinese and Filipino fishermen at Manila villages and other fishing villages along the lower La Fourche.

LOS ANGELES.—With seventeen motion pictures now being filmed simultaneously, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios are the busiest producers in the world at the present time.

The following well-known players are now engaged on the great M-G-M lot at Culver City, near here:

Lillian Gish, Norman Kerry, Creighton Hale, David Torrence, Hobart Bosworth, Antonio Moreno, Greta Garbo, Lon Chaney, William Haines, Eleanor Boardman, Carmel Myers, Marc McDermott, Amand Kallie, Lionel Barrymore, Virginia Brown Faire, Roy D'Arcy, Owen Moore, Louise Fazenda, John Gilbert, Lars Hanson, Joan Crawford, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., Beatrice Lillie, Ramon Novarro, Alice Terry, Oscar Shaw, Dorothy Phillips, Charley Ray, Gertrude Olmsted, Lew Cody, May MacAvoy, Conrad Nagel, Sally O'Neil, Warner Oland, Renee Adoree, Gardner James, Bert Roach, Claire McDowell and Col. Tim McCoy.

Marion Davies, dainty blonde Cosmopolitan star, who produces on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, has just completed "The Red Mill," and will soon start "Tillie, the Toiler," an adaptation for the screen by Agnes Christine Johnson.

Tanned and wind-burned after weeks of deadly monotony on location in the Nevada desert for the filming of "The Winning of Barbara Worth," Ronald Colman, leading man, and Vilma Banky, beautiful Hungarian actress, have returned to Los Angeles and are preparing to start work soon on their next picture together, "The Vagabond Prince." Henry King, who directed the screen version of Harold Bell Wright's novel, will bark orders to the actors in "The Vagabond Prince." The picture is taken from the stage play, "King Harlequin."

Now that he's married to Lois Weber, the famous woman motion picture director, Capt. Harry Gantz has started hanging around the Universal lot. The retired army officer is assisting in thirteen comedies by coaching "Slim" Summerville in egregious violations of army discipline. The captain tells the comedian how the well-disciplined private does not act.

Miss Weber, or Mrs. Gantz, is now directing "The Sensation Seekers," a picture of flappers and sheiks.

The film replica of St. Stephen's cathedral in Vienna, constructed for Erich von Stroheim's "The Wedding March," is such an imposing edifice that Hal Mohr, Paramount chief cameraman, will use it for his own wedding ceremony. Mohr will marry Claire Del Mar, movie "extra," in the "cathedral," and Von Stroheim will be best man. The wedding is not a part of the picture.

When not actually before the camera, H. B. Warner, the actor who will play the part of Christ in Cecil DeMille's new picture, "The King of Kings," will spend his time on the lot in a portable dressing room. DeMille wishes to avoid even an actor "make up" for such a part strolling about the set smoking big black cigars.

A German scholar tracing the origin of the Sanskrit verb is not more thorough than Lenore J. Coffee, the scenarist, who wrote "The Volga Boatman." Miss Coffee, in search of information about Russia, made the rounds of libraries and bookstores, gleaning all the knowledge possible about the land of the steppes and soviet.

Miss Coffee also wrote "The Battalion of Death," another story of Russia, which was purchased by Gloria Swanson.

The magnificent motion picture houses of the present day are a far cry from the "jitney shows" of ten years ago, but the next ten years may see developments in the motion picture industry just as revolutionary, according to B. P. Schulberg, recently appointed executive head of Famous Players-Lasky on the west coast.

GOODS OBTAINED BY KIWANIS FOR 'COUNTRY STORE'

Committees Calling On Merchants Of Twin Cities

CO-OPERATION IS SPLENDID

Proceeds To Be Used In Relief Work Of Organization

Committees representing the Albany-Decatur Kiwanis club are now engaged in solicitation from local merchants of articles to be sold at the club's annual "Country Store."

The store this year will open on September 30, earlier than has been customary, but the committees are hard at work and expressed the belief that it would be even a greater success than in previous years.

The proceeds of the store provide a large part of the funds used by the Kiwanis in their relief work, including the annual Christmas tree for underprivileged children. The store idea was inaugurated several years ago and was a success from the first. No article is sold for more than ten cents, but some of the articles sold are worth considerable more than that amount. The greater part of the stock is donated by local merchants, making practically all of the proceeds clear profit.

During the year the Kiwanis have done a great work in behalf of the underprivileged children of Morgan county, the bringing here of the Solomon clinic from Louisville, Ky., being one of the outstanding accomplishments. Scores of children were given medical attention without cost during the period of the clinic and the amount of good accomplished by the clinic is almost incalculable.

Members of the committee reported they were meeting with a warm spirit of co-operation from the merchants in obtaining pledges of goods for the store.

Artists Heard At Kiwanis Meeting

Herbert Spangler, violinist of Cincinnati Conservatory and F. M. Church, music director of Athens College, today delighted the members of the Albany-Decatur Kiwanis club gathered at the noon hour at the Y. M. C. A.

The artists will appear at the Princess theatre Friday night about eight o'clock and again Sunday at vesper services to be held at Westminster Presbyterian church. Their selections today brought forth generous applause from Kiwanians.

Peterson Talks On Growth of Motors

H. L. Peterson, Morgan County Motor Co., today offered a very interesting and inclusive talk upon the growth of the automobile industry since the year 1895. Mr. Peterson's talk was made before the Kiwanis club at the Y. M. C. A. The speaker developed the industry from its earliest start down to the present day. An interesting point made in the talk was seen in the assertion that Henry Ford at the age of 33 years was drawing a salary of $125 monthly.

Unrecorded Civil War Battle Is Disclosed By Sunken Rebel Boat

By International News Service
LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—An unrecorded Civil War engagement, lost in the confusion of events during the '60's has been pieced together here as a result of the finding of parts of the "Lizzie Simmons," a sidewheel steamboat which plied the Arkansas river before the War Between the States, and later was converted into a Confederate gunboat.

The propeller shaft of the boat, corroded by its three-quarter century rest under the turbid waters of the river, was hauled ashore by a government snagboat, after it had sunk a barge which collided with it.

Old residents recalled that in 1863 when General Steele approached the city of Little Rock at the head of 20,000 Federal troops, the small Confederate force which had occupied the city, retired. But not without a show of resistance.

Five converted river-boats, tied up at the city wharf, were set on fire and turned loose to drift down the river, towards the gunboats which brought the Federal forces to Little Rock. They created havoc, setting fire to and sinking several of the invading craft.

The war records of the Confederacy and the Union army merely note that half a dozen or more gunboats were "burned at Little Rock," it is said. But local historians, piecing together details of the engagement, have revealed that the burning enemy ships caused the Federal gunboats to retire from the city, with the loss of several of the invading craft.

FORD ESTIMATES COTTON DANGERS

County Agent Called From One End Of County to Other

J. C. Ford, county farm agent, today declared that owing to the effective work of farmers in this county that the cotton worm has done very little damage. Ten times the amount of damage done by the worm has been done by the flea hopper, stated the farm statistician.

Farmers are urged by Mr. Ford to buy poisoning now in preparation for the second coming of the worm pest on or about September, declared Mr. Ford "but the farmer must not be caught napping. The worm can destroy a cotton yield over night."

The greatest damage in this county has been done in the Danville section and west of Falkville. Mountain sections have not been injured.

The 36,000 bale yield of last year is not expected this year by farmers, owing to the great amount of wet weather throughout August, causing deterioration.

FIFTY-TWO GATHER

Fifty-two of the total membership of the Albany-Decatur Kiwanis club were assembled today in the regular weekly meeting. This number, according to the attendance committee of which George D. Williamson is chairman, is the largest for the summer period of meetings.

NEW LINE ADDED BY HOSEIERY MILL

Silk Sox To Be Made For Infants At Local Plant

V. L. King, superintendent of the Albany hosiery mill, today announced the addition of another line made at the local mill. Beginning at once the plant will manufacture derby ribbed silk hosiery for infants, marking the third line of silk products made at the plant here and the ninth hosiery style manufactured locally.

The Albany hosiery mill, a branch of the Cooper-Wells company, of St. Joseph, Mich., makes the well known "Iron-Clad" hose, a nationally advertised brand. The success of the local plant has been most satisfying to the owners, it is said.

EAST IS UNHURT

Eastern sections of Morgan county will come through this year with a normal cotton yield, is the opinion of J. C. Ford, county farm agent. The east section farmers were prepared for the attack of cotton pests and took immediate steps to banish the cause.

Engineer Saves Memphis Special

Engineer Giles, of Sheffield, who was pulling the Memphis Special, westbound, probably prevented serious loss of life when he stopped his train near Saulsbury, Tenn., within a short space, after several pullman coaches had gone off the track. Sensing something was wrong with the train, he looked back and saw the coaches were off the rails. Putting on his brakes, he threw his engine into reverse and stopped the train before the pullman coaches were turned over.

TODAY 12 Years Ago
From The Daily of August 26, 1914.
Miss Juanita Nelson has returned from a fortnight's stay with her sister, Mrs. T. E. McCandon at Ensley.
Mrs. John Pointer is quite ill at her residence on Church street.
Miss Helen Smith of Town Creek is the guest of Miss Helen Odom.
Miss Laura Couch has returned from a visit to South Alabama.
Mrs. M. E. Russell and daughter, Kate, of Valhermosa, are the guests of Mrs. H. E. McKelvey.

It wouldn't have done much good to put away a little ray of golden sunshine for a rainy day, the odds have been too great.

One of the saddest features of Valentino's death is the comparative certainty that within a few years his name will have dropped into the almost forgotten past, along with that of Wallace Reed.

The Pressmen's Union this week dedicated, at Pressman's Home, Tenn., a memorial "to the American pressmen who took an honorable part in the great war." It was said to be the first memorial dedicated by any labor union to the veterans of the world conflict. Major George L. Berry, president of the Pressmen's Union, was one of the heroes of the American participation in the war. He was one of the founders of the American Legion, pledged to perpetuate the ideals of America and his sage counsel has been most valuable in keeping that organization alive and thriving. In the dedication of their war memorial, the pressmen displayed a sincere spirit of patriotism and it is fitting that during their convention they should have elected President Berry for another term of eight years.

GRAVES MOVES TO GET THE CONVICTS OUT OF THE MINES.

Much good sense is being displayed by Colonel Bibb Graves, democratic nominee for governor, in making plans for getting the convicts out of the mines.

Colonel Graves recently called into conference W. C. Davis, democratic nominee for lieutenant-governor, and the two of them are reported to have threshed out plans for putting the necessary machinery in motion to clear the mines of convict labor and to remove from Alabama a stain on her clean pages.

In this endeavor Colonel Graves will receive the approbation of Alabama citizens everywhere.

ANNISTON CITY AUTHORITIES SHOW COMMENDABLE SPIRIT OF CO-OPERATION.

Over in Anniston, the city authorities are displaying a commendable spirit of co-operation with the Junior Chamber of Commerce. It appears, from what has been in the Anniston Star, that once before when the Junior Chamber arranged for a fall fair for Calhoun county, that the civic organization found its plans interfered with by the determination of a big circus to show in Anniston just before or during the time set for the fair.

Realizing that such competition would likely cause the fair to be a financial failure, the Juniors postponed it. When plans were made for the exhibition this year, the Juniors discovered within the city the representative of another big circus, which desired to play in Anniston a short time before the fair.

The Juniors, acting with the city council, had taken the precaution to obtain the enactment of a city statute which provided that advertisement of any other circus or similar show could not be displayed for 30 days prior to the date of the fair. Someone, however, picked a flaw in the ordinance, but the Juniors, undiscouraged, took the matter up again with the council, resulting in the adoption of an ordinance providing that before any amusement enterprise could be opened, that permits must be asked of the council. This, of course, will necessitate the Juniors and the circus people both filing requests for such permission. Obviously, the council then will grant the Juniors the permit for the fair and decline to grant the permit for the circus.

It would seem that a reputable circus would not care to run contrary to public opinion in any community, but when such occasions do arise, it is refreshing to note that the city authorities display a wholehearted willingness to co-operate with an organization, the only desire of which is to do something for the community it serves.

TENNESSEE VALLEY BANK STARTS WORK ON ITS HANDSOME NEW BUILDING.

The rapidity with which work was started on the new building for the Tennessee Valley Bank is gratifying to the public here and everyone joins with the bank in the hope for its early completion.

Such a home as the Tennessee Valley Bank plans to erect will be a distinct asset to the Twin Cities, and The Daily joins with all local citizens in extending the congratulations of this community to this big banking institution.

The Tennessee Valley Bank is one of the South's great financial institutions, and the people here are glad that its expansion has been so great that additional space became a necessity. The service it renders to the people of North Alabama is deserving of the marked success which has crowned its efforts.

The St. Louis Bank Building and Equipment Company sends its representatives here, strangers within our midst. The Daily hopes that they will not remain strangers long. The Daily hopes that their stay here may be most pleasant and profitable to them. If there is any way in which any citizen can assist them in their undertaking, The Daily feels confident it may speak for the citizenship as a whole, in saying "Simply call on us."

Again The Daily extends its congratulations to the Tennessee Valley Bank, may it continue to enlarge its scope of service to the people of this section.

DESPERADO SURRENDERS TO WOMAN SHERIFF TO GET A NEW THRILL.

After one has killed five men and wounded two others in a little more than a year, the novelty of killing evidently wears off.

"I wanted the thrill of surrendering to a woman," was the explanation offered by Kinzie Wagner as he walked into the sheriff's office at Texarkana, Ark.-Tex., and gave himself up after having shot two brothers to death and wounded a third one.

Mrs. Little Barber was appointed sheriff of the county to fill out the unexpired term of her husband, who was shot and killed by a desperado sometime ago. She is described as a mild mannered little woman . . . and yet one of the most feared men in Mississippi, Tennessee and Arkansas, walked into her office and surrendered himself, rather than try to escape.

Wagner is quoted in press dispatches as talking freely of his escapades. He ran away from home when he was 14 years of age, a mistake he was not the originator, nor will he be the last to make it. He joined a traveling show and went about over the country. His claim is that he first encountered trouble with the law when he was "framed" on a charge of theft. Later he killed a deputy sheriff in a successful effort to escape. Going to Tennessee he killed two more officers who sought to arrest him. His fourth and fifth victims were claimed in Arkansas, after he had engineered a successful escape from the Tennessee prison while facing sentence to the electric chair.

Kinnie Wagner, man killer and desperado, concludes his story by a quaint bit of what he probably considers chivalry: "I have never struck a woman. I would not hurt one, no matter what they did to me." Truly, the ways of human beings are difficult of understanding.

DR. CHARLES W. ELIOT GAVE MUCH TO AMERICA'S ADVANCEMENT.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, grand old man of Harvard, is dead and American education has lost one of its truest friends.

For 40 years President Eliot remained as the directing head of Harvard, long recognized as not only one of the leading educational institutions of America, but of the world. Born in Boston when Andrew Jackson was president of the United States, Charles W. Eliot became president of Harvard when he was but 37 years of age and served that great university for 40 years before his retirement at the age of 75.

His advice in public matters, although given sometime with a quantity of pepper which was not always entirely satisfactory to his listeners, was always appreciated and his counsel will be missed.

His views, the Associated Press says, sometimes were regarded as "bitter," but the Associated Press points out that after describing football as more brutal than prize fighting, he saw a game between Harvard and the Carlisle Indians, under changed rules, which he admitted was a big improvement.

When Harvard was considering race distinction of candidates he declared, "I am opposed to every form of racial distinction in the universities of our country."

In a discussion on "the religious future," he said: "The fear of hell has not proved effective to deter man from wrong doing, and heaven has never been described in terms very attractive to the average man or woman."

During the war he maintained "the hope of the world lies in complete co-ordination between the British Empire and the United States."

Puritans found little favor with him, "they took the joy out of work and life," he once wrote.

He was an ardent foe of liquor and predicted that there would be a modification.

He caused a stir when he said: "Whoever is familiar with the genealogy of the New England families that have come down from the 17th century knows that the commonest cause for the decline or extinction of the families have been abuses of itself."

His recipe for longevity was a "sound body unimpaired by excess and plenty of exercise, moderation in eating."

"Exercise should be taken regularly, though always in moderation," he advised. "One of the chief objections I have to combat nowadays is that they over exercise."

The foregoing reminds the writer of a story once attributed to Dr. Eliot, indicating that he was not without a keen sense of humor. He is said to have told a friend that one of the things about the Harvard students which he never could understand was their attitude toward him.

Soon after he became president of Harvard, one night he heard two students talking on the campus, one declaring in a whisper he had not thought heard: "Beat it, here comes old Eliot." Years afterward, President Eliot had a similar experience, with the exception that now the warning had become: "Beat it, here comes Charley."

As president of Harvard and as author of many books, President Eliot contributed a great deal to the advancement of education in America and in his death the nation suffers a keen loss.

TODAY (By ARTHUR BRISBANE)

estly, continuously. One Southern clergyman arranged for continuous prayer to be kept up night and day until it did rain.

THAT was overdoing it. The rain began, almost at once, and it rained, on and on. Now Kentucky's tobacco crop is threatened by excessive rain and other crops are injured. A continuance of the drought would have done less harm.

Aristotle's doctrine of the golden mean "not too much, not too little," is the right doctrine. At the same time, much spiritual good has surely been accomplished by Kentucky's demonstration of the power of prayer.

A GREAT public library discovers that men read more than women, about 65 men to 17 women in the main reading room. In rooms devoted to technology, chemistry and science, the percentage is 92 men, 8 women. Woman's greatest attendance is in the room devoted to genealogy, where books help to identify your remote ancestors.

PROUD men will say: "All this proves that I am the intellectual half of the race. Woman is only interested in finding a lord or king in her ancestry. Woman will reply 'You're wrong. Woman is compelled to spend the first of her life looking for a man worth marrying.' After she gets him, her time is devoted to taking care of him and watching him. When she realizes how little he amounts to she looks up his ancestry, hoping to find good news for her children."

MORE important to this practical country than any message "from the beyond" is the news that there is no longer a limit to the length of super-power lines. When Niagara was first harnessed, power could be carried only a short distance, the loss as distance increased, was like Newton's law "inversely as the square of the distance." Nicola Tesla was conspicuous in solving that difficulty.

NOW, for any distance in the United States, the problem is solved. Experiments by the enterprising Pacific Gas and Electric company of Northern California, and C. L. Fortescue, of the Westinghouse company, justify the statement "there is no theoretical limit to the length or capacity of a transmission line."

SAMUEL INSULL, Arthur Williams, or some other enterprising "electrical king" should hurry to Brazil, and buy that gigantic inland water power, now wasted and greater than Niagara. If the British can harness their great waterfalls in Africa and use their power in Britain, they will soon pay their war debts, and solve their coal strike problem, by making coal mines not worth working.

THE next step will be wireless transmission of power and the small boy destined to produce that is doubtless fussing with his radio set, somewhere in America now. Wireless power from the Zambesi Falls to Birmingham and from Niagara and the Colorado river to our fleets in the air, will come, before this "material" century ends.

FLYING will be cheaper than motoring, and flying fares will be less than half the cost of modern railroad fares. Real railroad men, that look ahead, have that in mind. Many of them will be found among the first owners of flying passenger lines. Mr. Sproul, president of the Southern Pacific, said to this writer at a luncheon given by Herbert Fleischacker in San Francisco: "When I saw a flying machine come down, at twilight, here on the edge of the Pacific, having left the Atlantic coast that same day, I did a good deal of hard thinking in a short time."

REAL railroad men know that soon they will be "in the flying machine business," or out of the long haul passenger business, and they will be interested in a recent 4 day flight by Lieutenant Colonel Sir John Rhodes. He averaged better than thirteen miles to the gallon of petrol, running his airplane at a cost of less than 6 cents a mile. What will become of the railroads long distance passenger business, when this advertisement appears: New York to Chicago in four hours. Every hour on the hour by luxurious Pullman fliers, fare ten dollars. New York to California twelve hours, fare fifteen dollars. Luggage limit one hundred pounds. Send your trunks one day in advance by

MIDDLE-EAR DEAFNESS CAN BE RELIEVED

Nasal Tissues Must Be Made Healthy and Then the Eustachian Tube Cleared Before Any Cure Is Possible.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

In describing the tiny bones of the ear, I have spoken of the stirrup bone. It is so called because of its resemblance to the stirrup of an army saddle. The base or foot-plate of this bone fits into an opening in the skull in such manner that the foot plate can play to and fro in the opening. In this way the vibrations of the ear-drum are carried through the little bones to the foot-plate of the stirrup bone. This is made to vibrate and it communicates its movements to the fluid in the inner ear.

This fluid, in turn, is agitated, and the endings of the nerve of hearing which float in the fluid are stimulated. Then the brain takes up the impulses and translates them into meaning sounds.

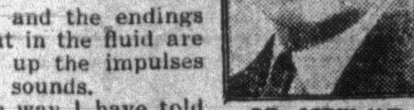

In a very brief and unscientific way I have told you how the outside vibrations passing through the canal of the ear to the drum are transmitted to the nerve of hearing. Unless the drum and little bones are freely movable and flexible, the sound waves are not carried as they should be.

Any catarrhal condition which inflames and thickens the lining membrane of the ear will interfere with the vibrations of the drum, bones and inner ear fluid. Deafness, more or less profound, is the inevitable result.

Acute catarrh, as acute colds are called, may not permanently impair the hearing. There may be temporary thickening of the nose and ear tissues, but recovery is likely to be complete. You may have a "stopped up" feeling in the ears and feel deaf for a few days.

Repeated and neglected colds are different. There is more and more inflammation of the mucous membrane. Then the condition is known to doctors as a "chronic catarrh." This means that the tissues of the Eustachian tube and inner ear will become thicker and thicker as time goes on. Just as the tissues of the nose become thicker and it becomes difficult to breathe freely.

It is not to be expected that "catarrhal deafness," the form of deafness you get in the way I have just described, can be relieved unless the nasal tissues are first made healthy. The first step in successful treatment is to get the nose back to fairly normal condition. Then the Eustachian tube—the passageway to the ear—is opened by inflation and other treatment. Skill-

Answers to Health Queries

C. Q. Q.—What would cause a murmur in the heart? Could it be due to indigestion? Would too much exercise be responsible?

A.—Usually due to weakness of heart valves and may be caused by infectious diseases such as influenza, rheumatism, etc. Have your doctor advise the treatment necessary. No although indigestion often affects the heart action. No.

T. B. Q.—What is the cause of high blood pressure? Should I do heavy house-cleaning? I am fifty-nine years of age and in normal health otherwise.

A.—Indiscretion in diet, constipation or possibly a kidney condition are all responsible causes. Careful attention to the diet and general care should be helpful in bringing the pressure down to normal. Your doctor will advise you, since each case demands specific attention. FASHION NOTES

PARIS.—The Cocktail frock is one of the best contributions to the smart autumn collections and it is very likely that every woman will have one in her wardrobe before the snow begins to fly.

The cocktail frock is the passport, meaning something extremely convenient, a combination of day and evening frock which looks well on all occasions and at any hour. One may wear it to a Cocktail Party, for which it is originally intended, and then go on to a little dinner or dance feeling perfectly well-dressed and correct. It fills a long-felt want for late afternoon rendez-vous and early evening parties.

The original cocktail frock is to be seen at Nicole Grout's in gray moire with a gold thread, one of the season's newest materials. It is cut with a long straight back and has no sleeves. The neck is turned away with a narrow coat-like rever faced with pale gray satin opening over a vest of deep pink georgette. It has two tailored pockets lined with pink on either side of the skirt and the elegance required of all formal gowns is furnished by the gray lace over pale pink of the vestee, the wide lace on the handkerchief drooping from the pocket and an extra large pink boutonniere.

A striking cocktail frock seen at the Ritz last week came in one of the striped velvets in red and yellow. It is plain in front and back and has a series of rather full flounces on the sides. A row of long red silk tassels is placed on one side of the front and the others hang from the long tight sleeves.

Moire or faille silk make some charming cocktail frocks. One in a beautiful tone of dark blue has

Talking motion pictures will be shown at the Princess Theatre tonight in connection with the picture program featuring Colleen Moore in "Irene." The talking motion picture is being shown by the Alabama Power Company, a continuation of the successful demonstration of Servel Refrigerating, conducted by N. K. Barton. Those who have seen and heard the new device proclaim its merits as one of the wonders of the electrical age.

Views Snows On Colorado Peaks

Herman Papenburg, just returned from a vacation in the West, declared that four inches of snow rested on the summit of Pike's Peak when he was a visitor to that point. He declared the snows were still falling when he started the return trip to the foot of the great mountain. Papenburg has resumed his position with the Albany Fire Department.

SENT TO HOSPITAL

BELLEFOUNTE, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Lieutenant Silas K. Bettis, army flying ace, who was injured seriously when his plane ran into one of the peaks of Seven Sisters Mountain on Monday was taken to Walter Reed hospital, Washington, in an ambulance airplane today.

Five counties in the state were named in honor of South Carolina.

Try This On Your Table!

Frozen desserts and salads can quickly be secured with little effort as follows:

Take the regular line of canned goods (either dessert or salad) and set the can into a bucket between equal layers of crushed ice and ice cream salt. Let stand 3 hours. Take out the can; dip for an instant in hot water; punch holes in the bottom; then open the can and turn out a cylinder of frozen food ready to serve.

Plenty of pure, sparkling ice is a necessity in the home.

Cards Go Back Into Lead As Carey Drops Pirates In Brooklyn Game

St. Louis troop of Cardinals moved back into first place today while the Bucs and Reds dropped games to the Giants and Robins.

The Cards took a long battle from Boston 4-3 in eleven innings in a free hitting contest, the Cards getting 15 blows while Boston gathered 12. Hafe's single in the 11th frame as he batted for Southworth, brought across the winning run for the Cards.

Over in Cincinnati the Giants were beating Carl Mays 2-1. Mays pitched a masterful game for his club, but double plays halted all Red scoring chances. Mays stopped the Giants with seven hits while the Reds took eight hits off Hugh McQuillen. The Reds had won ten straight games up until their reversal.

Fate overtook the Pirates, as they toiled against the Robins and Max Carey. Appeared in a Robin uniform and delivered the hit that spelled the Buc defeat. Vic Aldridge yielded but five hits, but one of them a scratch single by Carey in the fifth with two on base gave the Robins their margin of victory. The Pirates outhit Brooklyn 7-5.

The Chicago Cubs took the other National fracas from Philadelphia, 3-2, in a pitching rumpus between Carlson and Jones.

The three leading clubs today are standing: Cards 582, Pirates 578, Reds 574. Chicago follows with 529.

Uhl still holds the Indian sign on the Yanks blanking that outfit 6-0. The Yanks were unable to bunch hits off Uhl and went down in inglorious defeat without having crossed the pan. Babe Ruth grabbed two singles for the afternoon. The game was Uhl's 21st win of the season. The game was played in a steady drizzle and the second game of the scheduled double header was postponed.

Detroit took a pair from Boston 11-4 and 7-6. The Tigers went off a hitting spree and batted eight Red Sox hurlers all over the lot to take both ends of the fracas.

Down in the Southern league the Barons were idle but managed to gain a few notches in the fight for the top at New Orleans was dropping a tilt to Chattanooga when Bruce Harford delivered the necessary blow in the ninth inning. That reduces the lead of the Pels to four full games, but

Schalk Joined Big League As Joke Finishes 14 Years As Top Notcher

BY GEORGE A. STRICKLER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO.—"I'm proud of baseball. It has been very good to me," Ray Schalk, diminutive catcher for the Chicago White Sox, remarked recently on the occasion of his fourteenth anniversary as a big leaguer.

Baseball should be good to Schalk, for the "Cracker," as he is affectionately known in sportsdom, has been very fair with the game.

Stumbling out of the American Association in 1912, Schalk came to the big leagues as somewhat of a joke, if you please. He had been watched several times by major circuit scouts, but generally he was passed by as too small to meet the requirements of battery mates to such well known hurlers as Ed Walsh and the like.

Finally Detroit took a chance with Schalk, but at the time of his advent to the Tiger fold there was no need of relief there and he was immediately sent to Milwaukee. He pastimed there with attractive success until 1912.

"A year or two after I arrived at Milwaukee," Schalk mused, "Kid Gleason and Frank Fogarty, the Dublin minstrel, now dead, dropped into the Brewer orchard. The next thing I knew I was signed with the White Sox. Comiskey sent Russell Blackburn and Jimmy Block together with some money to Milwaukee in return for my services."

Schalk was a midget as big league baseballers went then. But he announced he was ready to catch and in short order convinced all those that he was capable of the same.

Schalk had never aspired to be a ballplayer. Instead he had shaped his career to be a linotype operator. His first job was in the printing office of the Lithfield, Ill. Herald-News, where he was a "printer's devil."

"About this time," Ray recalled the story, "the Taylorville club of the Illinois-Missouri league sought to sign me. Their offer of $30 a month looked pretty good to me and I jumped at it."

In addition to being one of the oldest catchers in the headline circuits, Schalk is a member of the oldest battery in major league baseball. The other member is Urban "Red" Faber, who came to the White Sox two years after Schalk reported. For twelve years these two have carried the white of the Sox. Of Faber, Schalk said: "Although Faber is not the greatest pitcher in the game, he is the finest fellow I have ever played with. And he is the toughest man I have ever tried to catch."

In the first place, Red has a spitter, which is about as rough a throw to juggle I can think of. Then too, Red is bearing down all the time. He gives a catcher a pounding from one end of the game to the other. Many is the pound of beef-steak I have fastened my paw after stopping Red for an afternoon."

Some of Schalk's records officially recognized include playing 151 games in the season of 1920; second to Charley Bennett of Detroit, with the league fielding leadership in percentage, having been first in five different seasons; catching more than 100 games for 12 years, eleven of which were consecutive, thus constituting two records; and the most games caught in one league, Ray having set an all time record of 1,690 games from 1912 to August 8, 1926.

Ray is still catching and evinced a determination to put in a couple of more seasons for the White Sox if they care to keep him.

Just rolling along with PRINCE ALBERT

AND having a wonderful time! Yes, Sir. P. A. makes the finest cigarette that ever took form in your fingers. Easier to roll. This tobacco is crimp-cut, which means that you don't need a scoop or a broom to take up the spillage. P. A. stays put in the papers. This is just an item, of course. The taste's the thing.

Just get yourself a tidy red tin of Prince Albert today and get going with some of these masterful cigarettes. You'll find them cool. You'll find them sweet. You'll find them fragrant, as you roll them, and as you smoke them. Delightfully fragrant.

You never weary of rolling and smoking them. The reason for all of this is the wonderful quality of the tobacco. Prince Albert has no near-relatives. Not even a second-cousin. To get the most out of a home-rolled cigarette, you must get Prince Albert. That's a prescription—and a promise!

Pipe-smokers, too, know the joys of a jimmy-pipe packed with P. A. They'll tell you that P. A. does things to a pipe—makes it perform in a way a good pipe should. No matter how settled you think you are, if you don't know Prince Albert, you don't know complete pipe-joy.

DON JUAN

Novel by INEZ SABASTIAN

Copyright, 1926, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"Don Juan," screen play by Boss Meredyth, starring John Barrymore, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
His father's warning—"Destroy women or they will destroy you!"—has made Don Juan the greatest lover of all time. His cynicism is checked by Madonna-like Adriana Varnesse. Loving her madly, he reforms. The love's incur the enmity of infamous Lucretia Borgia, who loves Juan, and Donati, her husband, who covets Adriana. The Borgia contrive to have Juan catch Donati in Adriana's room under circumstances that destroy his faith in her virtue. Cynically convinced that Adriana is a cheat like all other women, he becomes the lover of Lucretia Borgia.

Her vanity would not let her think anything else. She refused to remember the trap she had made for him, preparing to think that it was he who had paid court, and not she.

And over and over she told herself how devoted he was, this gallant, handsome Spaniard.

Maria, knowing of the other women who shared this so-called devotion, bled her to a church and prayed that Lucretia might continue so to believe.

"For Heaven help all Rome if ever she finds how mistaken she is," she concluded piously to herself.

CHAPTER IX
It was barely a month after the night when Don Juan first kept a rendezvous with Lucretia Borgia that the cathedral bells, tolling as sunset faded over Rome's seven hills and the evening star grew clear, announced the wedding night of Adriana and the Count Donati.

Her father's hand touched her so compassionately.

It was but a few hours later that Donati, befogged with drink, looked down the bedecked table at the head of which he sat with his bride, impatient at the slow progress of the banquet, wondering if he could not somehow hasten the moment when he and she could be free of the presence of all these guests who sat drinking their health.

The great banquet hall was crowded. Over long tables parallel, at which the guests sat, were laden as it was with marvellously prepared food. There were peacocks, swans, fowl and fish brought specially to Rome, cooked by the most famous chefs in the city. The fowl had been so prepared that after they were cooked their feathers and heads had been placed upon them, so that they might have been live birds, as they rested on the gold and silver platters which the serving men bore past the long tables. Black and golden grapes trailed gracefully over the sides of vide, shallow dishes of the Syrian glass. The lace that covered the tables was priceless; even as Donati watched the scene, one of the guests turned and threw his arms around a woman, upsetting his goblet of red wine, which cascaded over the cloth, staining it.

"As red as the blood that feeds your heart!" the man exclaimed, and the woman laughed, the low, sweet laughter of passion.

At Donati's side, Adriana also stared the length of the table, her face as white as the heavy satin of her gown. It was all a night-mare, the music that came murmuring from the gallery where the musicians sat, the laughter of the guests, the love making that went on so openly. And a far worse nightmare lay just ahead.

Of that she did not dare let herself think. She turned and married a piteous little smile at her father. She had done this for him, she told herself. And the fact that he was sitting there beside her now, alive, was her reward.

Donati's arm crept around her shoulders; she shuddered as his hand touched her bare flesh. His sudden face flushed with anger, and then he laughed, thickly.

His fingers clenched her shoulder.

HARTSELLE NEWS

Work of grading the new street leading south from the L. and N. depot was begun Tuesday, and will be rushed to completion as early as possible. With the completion of this street a long felt want will be available as an outlet will thus be possible leading to other streets west of the railroad. This new street will parallel the L. and N. railroad to a point near Howell's saw and planing mill, where it will intersect another street leading west.

It will be necessary to bridge Town Branch over which the street traverses, and a large fill will be necessary also.

The body of Mr. W. H. Sheats who died at Tampa Florida arrived at Hartselle Tuesday on No. 2. Interment was made at Evergreen cemetery, near his old home. A large number of Hartselle people attended the funeral services. Mr. Sheats lived at Hartselle for a long time, and had many friends.

An all night rain came to this section Tuesday night, followed by lower temperatures and a cloudy day Wednesday. The rains have not damaged growing crops in this section to any marked degree, as sunshine has been liberal each day, and rain has come to this section in greater and lesser amounts practically each day for the past four weeks.

The Hartselle municipal campaign has not opened up as yet, the rumblings of the impending contest can be heard, and it is quite possible that candidates will be in the field for the mayorship and aldermanic berths.

Mayor S. E. Gibson is filling the unexpired term of mayor J. L. Day, who resigned on account of pressing business several months since. Mr. Gibson was alderman at the time of his elevation to the mayorship.

The Hartselle city school will open for another term next Monday with G. G. Glover as principal at the helm. Mr. Glover has been at the head of this school for the past several years.

The Falkville High school opened last Monday, and it is said that the enrollment is so large that every available space is being used to accommodate the large number of students in attendance.

M. Pattillo has returned from a visit to his mother at Montevallo.

News has reached here of the serious illness of Joe Stephenson who was at Asheville, N. C., where he went in the hope of gaining back his health. His brother, Mr. Arthur Stephenson left for his bedside one day recently, and will probably bring his brother home.

Joe has many friends here who will indeed be sorry that he was not benefitted by the trip.

Messrs. James Rogers and T. R. Ryan went on a fishing trip Tuesday to Bailey Springs. They returned home Wednesday evening bringing with them a very fine lot of fish caught in the large lake above the big dam.

THREE DISTRICTS ADD TO RESERVE

Seven Counties Are Included In New Protection

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 25 (AP).—Three additional forestry districts comprising a total of about 940,000 acres have been added to the organized forest territory of the state thus far during August, says a statement issued by the Alabama Commission of forestry. The first of these districts comprises portions of Talladega, Calhoun, and Etowah counties. D. M. Vinson is state forest ranger, whose address is route one, Ohatchee, Ala. The second of the new districts comprises the central portion of Washington county. The forest ranger is George E. Quigley, address Fruitdale, Ala. The third district includes portions of Marion, Fayette and Lamar counties. The forest ranger is F. H. Harbo, whose address is Detroit, Ala. The rangers in each of these three districts entered upon duty August 16.

Forestry districts are established only in those sections of the state where the local landowners are prepared to cooperate among themselves and with the State and Federal governments in renewing and protecting the forests of the community. Neither the state nor the Federal government can undertake to prevent injury to forest lands by fire or other destructive agencies unless the owner himself makes special exertion toward the same end. No more than a city fire department can guarantee a residence against damage if the householder does not himself take every precaution to prevent the starting of a fire and undertake to the best of his ability to extinguish such fires as may occur. With the increasing value of forest property, however, most of the landowners of the state are taking active interest in the protection of their holdings.

MOBILE PREVENTS LIQUOR LANDINGS

Custom Guard Is The First In South Says
Collector

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 25.—(AP).—Mobile is to have the first custom guard establishment in the South. This announcement has been made by A. R. Noble, collector of customs of this city. The station is to be in operation by September 1. Boats and other equipment are now en route and the appointments of custom guards and navigators have been practically made by Mr. Noble. The direct work is the prevention of narcotics, liquors and aliens from landing.

Four high speed cruisers will be in this service. The territory to be covered from this station extends from Pensacola, Fla., to Bay St. Louis, Miss., including Mobile. The work is to be under the guidance of Collector Noble.

Those mentioned as possible custom guards are: Ehris Myrick, of Florence; Thaddeus Z. Ingram, of Opelika; Arthur B. Fowler, of Springville; Patrick T. Graves, of Russellville; and William C. Pessell, of Arab. Robert Elwood, of this city, has been highly recommended for navigator.

"I cannot say that there is any undue smuggling going on in our section at present, but I believe that with the equipment that is being furnished the custom guards will do very effective work when they begin their operations September 1," said Mr. Noble. "An effort will also be made, said Mr. Noble, to direct special effort at narcotics, liquors and aliens—generally speaking against smuggling."

CALIFORNIA MAN AT 101
DIVORCING SEVENTH WIFE
(International News Service)
SANTA ANA, Cal. — Probably the oldest applicant for a divorce in the United States had a petition for a separation on file in court here today.

Juan Magana, 101, who remembers six wives, now wants to get rid of his seventh, Mathilda, 56. He has been a "kissless bridegroom," Magana charged, and he wants to be free.

Magana made his application through Charles Carrillo, Spanish interpreter for the court.

Montgomery county was named in honor of Lieutenant J. P. Montgomery, of Tennessee.
